In 1996, a U.Va. engineer developed the Virginia Information Superhighway Integrated Optic Network, or VISION, a fiber optics network that connected businesses, schools and public agencies through voice, video and data signals.